

FIUME: OBJECT OF RIVAL CLAIMS

The exploits of Gabriele d'Annunzio at Fiume, recalling the adventures of a medieval knight, keep that ancient city in the public eye.

If Trieste was the Bremen of Austria. Flume was the Hamburg of the Hungarian kingdom, a close rival for the brisk Adriatic trade of the period

Flume is another of those footholds on the eastern Adriatic where Italians clung fast despite the steady influx of Slavs in the interior, and in this case even into Flume itself. Thus the city bears evidence of early Italian culture, it figured as a potent Slav factor in the turmoil of Bulkan politics, and it felt strongly the influence of Hungary upon its thriving industries and fast growing commerce.

Magyar gerrymandering caused it. to be annexed to Hungary in 1870, despite the project of Croatia to which it had belonged since the revolution of 1848-49. Tender consideration for its value as a seaport, rather than for its citizens, prompted its establishment as a royal free town, making it a geographical slice of about seven square miles cut out of Croatia.

Despite the Hungarian interest in the city its pre-war population was 90 per cent Italian and Slav, with the Italians slightly predominant. Only about half the remaining tenth were Hungarians. The Slavs included Croats, Serbs and Slovenes. As Important to Hungary as are New York or Boston to the United States, Flume's total population is not much greater than such suburbs of those American ports as East Orange, N. J., or New-

Flume is situated on the northeast shores of the Gulf of Quarnero, only seventy miles, by rall, southeast of its trade rival Trieste. Across the bay Is the popular summer resort, Abhoria, famed for its evergreen laurel and profusion of roses, to which tens of thousands of visitors formerly througed each summer

The older town, distinctively Italian. is built on the hillside, overlooking the gulf. The newer city lies nearer the waterfront. There are three harbors, The largest accommodating 150 large vessels, is protected by a breakwater 'half a mile long. The quay is nearly two miles long.

Before the war Flume's manufacturbacco factory, the Whitehead torpedo works, a rice shelling factory, a petroleum refinery, and many smaller plants, among which were saw mills and paper mills. Its fisheries constituted an important industry. It exported sumr, graft, flour, horses and limber.

"GO WEST," SAID GREELEY; "SPREAD OUT," SAYS ELIOT

How are the evils that go with city crowding to be avoided in the face of the increasing congestion of American

By making the cities more like the country, is the gist of one noted think- cities of the world. It took the Boxer er's solution of that question. Despite the steady procession of country folk to cities their new environment lacks many of the benefits of the places they came from, in his opinion.

Charles W. Ellot, world-famous eduenter, in a communication to the National Geographic society says:

"In order to cure the destructive evils of present urban life and the factory system. It will not be enough to restrict the vices, to diminish the pressure of poverty, to prevent destructive diseases, and prolong the average human life. The human environment must be not only negatively but positively improved; so that the whole people may have the opportunity to cultivate healthy tastes and interests, to acquire just ideals of pleasantness and heauty, and to learn the value toward tranquil happiness of that living with nature which city congestion has within a single generation made almost impossible for mul-

"The present evils of city life and the factory system-bad conditions which civilization has itself createdhave developed their destructive forces. In this country in spite of the schools and churches and of free political institutions, and in spite of many happy influences from art, peetry, musle and the drama. Clearly, society needs to develop a new and better environment favorable to both bodily and mental health and to the attainment of genuine happiness-pot of mere momentary excitement, pleasures and grafifications, but of solid contentment, and the lasting satisfaction of life enjoyed in quietness and peace. What are the means of compassing this end?

"The readlest means is good planning of city, town and landscape first applied to areas still open, and then gradually to areas already occupied in undesirable ways. The new planning must take into account the interests of the whole community, as well as the interests of individual owners, the social or collective inter-

"The immediate objects to be sought are more light and air for dwellings, ces, shops and factories, and thus a sprending out of cities; the trans-fer of factories to suburbs and to country sites along the lines of rallway; the multiplication of playgrounds and open decorated areas, and above all the attachment of a piece of arable or garden ground to every fami-

"The collective force of the community must further supply the means of making rural and landscape pleasures occasionally accessible to city populations by means of parks and gardens which illustrate all forms of open-country beauty and permit the occasional enjoyment by city familles or larger urban groups of the outdoor pleasures which woods, shrubberies, gardens and broad fields can give."

POLAND ONCE THE SAVIOR OF EUROPE

and whose people have been called "Children of the Sun," plays no new role when she seeks to stop the onslaughts of the bolsbeviki, for it was who once stayed the march of the Turk across Europe.

A communication to the National Geographic society sums up Poland's sad and eventful history as follows:

In size she outranked nearly every nation of the continent. Russia alone of the European nations is larger than Poland was at her greatest. In popuintion she stood at the forefront of Europe. Only Russia and Germany greater populations before the than are to be found in the lands once were Poland; for uppartitioned Poland had an area of 282,000 miles, and the lands that once lay within her boundaries support a population of approximately 50 million. In area she was as large as the former German empire, Switzerland, Belgium, Holland and Denmark together: larger than Great Britain, Italy and Greece combined; larger than Austria-Hungary and Serbla in one. Within what were her boundaries there dwells a present population of Great Britain and Belgium; larger than those of France, Belgium and Holland together; and matching that of the old Austria-Hungary.

Poland was three times partitioned, and these partitionings, were readjusted between the partitioners by the Congress of Vienna in 1815. Where the original partitions had given Russia 181,000 square miles, Prussia 54,000 square miles, and Austria 45,000 square miles, the reapportionment of the Vienna Congress gave Russin 220,-500. Prussia 26,000, and Austria 35,000 square miles. Much of the land which ceiving in one year (1913) 1,197,892 Russia secured, and particularly Kley, had been identified with Russia generations before, Poland, in the days of her greatest orea, extended from a point within 50 miles of Rerlin, on the west, to the merblian of the sea of Azov on the east; on the north it reached nearly to the Gulf of Finland and on the south down to the Khannte of Crimea.

What we now know as Russian Poland is that neck of territory stretching westward between the Prussias and Galicia. This territory has an area almost exactly equal to that of New York, yet, in spite of the fact that its extreme southern boundary lies north of the latitude of Winnipeg, its population is as great as those of New York and New Jersey

PEKING: A CITY WITHIN A CITY

China, with its 700,000 people, was one of the least known of the great rebellion and the slege of the legations in 1900 to open the long-closed doors. Recently it has been in the headlines because of revolutionary disturbances.

Peking is a "city within a city." The Chinese city, built in 1543, is the commercial center. The Tatar city dates from 1267 and includes the famous "Forbidden City," of which the Dragon Throne of the Son of Heaven, Emperor of the Middle Kingdom, is center. The throne is of rare wood exquisitely carved. Just back of it is a screen of golden lacquer so dainty in design and execution that it gives the appearance of golden lace. Around this throne room are arranged the palaces, shut in by purple walls.

The Chlen-men street blsects the Chinese city from the South Gate, where the railway enters, to the principal gate in the wall separating the Chinese from the Tatar city. Along this main thoroughfare there passes a continuous throng. There, too, may be seen the springless passenger cart. with its blue arched roof and yellow wheels, corrugated metal tires, and its awning sheltering driver and mule, or the Mongolian camel, the ship of the Asian desert; and, interesting above all, the scarlet bridal chair with its piece of bacon and parcel of sugar hung on the back as an offering to the demons who might molest the bride while on her journey. Officials burry back and forth in the gorgeous chairs, their coolies making great din as they seek right of way. Noisy vendors of amulets, and medicines of ground tiger bones to strengthen faint hearts, and extracts of rat ment to make the buir grow, add to the din. in the east side of this roadway is an enclosure of about one square mile which confains the Altar of Heaven, surrounded by shrines and temples, the important of which is the elreu. r. three-roofed marble Temple of Heaven with pillars of Oregon pine and roof of deep blue porcelain tiles. Near the ornate Temple of Heaven is the Temple of Confucius, "the most holy sucestral toucher." Washington monument which a fine view of the city may be

For six dollars a government desires him to know as to Its actions, or he can cent his Gazette for the day and return it. In former years newspapers were found on the walls in the form of posters. They were printed from a large block of upon which the intricate characters had been cut by hand.

In the heart of the Tutar city is an other enclosure—the "Forbidden City." in which stands the Imperial palace. distinctive in China because it is faced with yellow porcelain. Surrounding the palace are the gardens, reception balls, pavillons and offices formerly wised by the emperor in conducting the for a few days last week. affairs of the empire.

"Prospect Hill" would be interest ng to those who went to the "movies" to keep warm during the recent coal shortages. The hill is a huge mound of coal which was to provide fuel in time of siege, and it is now covered with a grove of beautiful trees.

The Pekingese are consumers only, The trade of the city is small, although it is open to foreign commerce. The amous Grand canal which connected it with the rich provinces of South China greatly facilitates the transportation of rice and other products.

PRESERVING A "WHITE AUSTRALIA"

Declaration by the prime minister of Australia that his country was deermined to maintain its traditional policy of a "White Australia," a policy as firmly grounded there as is the Monroe doctrine in the United States, again turned the attention of the world toward that remote and unique

"It is not that Australia despises immigration," explains a communication to the National Geographic soclety from Herbert E. Gregory. "It is rather that she has clung to her ideal of 'a homogeneous people of British origin.

"Australia is disappointed that of the four large areas which offer congenial homes for people of European blood-namely. Australia, Canada, United States and Argentina-Austrahis alone is passed by, while the other three favored regions have received Europeans by hundreds of thousands. She saw the United States repeople from abroad, more than the offire net immigration to Australia for the preceding fifty-three years, and in another year (1910) enrolling four times as many people born in the Inited States Kingdom as were living n Australia.

"The traveler in search of duplieates of the Canadian Rockies, the Yosemite, the Grand Canyon, of Norregian flords and Alpine scenery, seed not visit Australia. Its moun ain scenery is that of the southern Appalachians, the White mountains and the low ranges of Arizona. Its platus and plateaus are comparable with those of the Rocky mountain footbills and the arid expanses of Utah, Idaha and Oregon. The blunt granite cap of Mt. Kosciusko, 7,328 feet above sen. is the cultifinating point of land. half dozen peaks reach the height of Mt. Washington, and something like one per cent of the entire land area ises as high as the Catskillis.

"That the size and form of a landones nearly as large as Europe should have remained unknown until 1770 is nost remarkable. "Curiously enough, the establishment of the first colony on the new found continent is an episode in the history of the United States. It was proposed by the British government to utilize the land as a home for the 'Loyalists' (Tories) who found life in the American colonies uncomfortable at the close of the Revolutionary war. They were to be supplied with land and money, and Malay staves or Engtish convicts were to be provided as

"Fear of the French deet and the removal of many Tories to Canada led to the abandonment of this scheme but another use for Botany Bay was soon discovered. Place must be found for undesirable citizens, who, before the Revolution, had been sent to America at the rate of one thousand a year, and New South Wales met the requirements.
